Sweet Confectionary

by KokoLockhart

Category: Yu-Gi-Oh
Genre: Humor, Romance
Language: English
Characters: Yami YÅ«gi, YÅ«gi M.
Status: Completed
Published: 2016-04-23 16:43:06
Updated: 2016-04-23 16:43:06
Packaged: 2016-04-27 12:51:41
Rating: T
Chapters: 1
Words: 1,238
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: Yugi loves his candy, especially chocolate. Yami learns to love it as well, but he loves it even more eating it with Yugi, literally. â€” puzzleshipping

Sweet Confectionary

First Puzzleshipping fanfiction! I hope all of you enjoy! :)

Characters belong to Kazuki Takahashi.

* * *

>Mutou Yugi smiled happily, as he held two bags filled with confectionary when walking out of the candy shop. There was a sale going on and he couldn't resist! Buy two large pocky boxes and get another two for free?! Buy two packs of jelly beans and get another two also for free?!

His most favourite one was 'Buy one large chocolate bar and get another THREE for free'.

An astonishing sale indeed!

Yami transparently appeared beside Yugi, slightly concerned about the quantity of sweets that filled up the two bags. _"Aibou, don't you think that's a little too much?"_

"Nope," Yugi cheerfully answered his partner, eyes beaming at the thought of devouring the big bar of chocolate. "You could never have too much candy, Mou Hitori no Boku!"

Yami was still skeptical, but nonetheless chuckled it off. "_Very well then,_" he said, going back into the puzzle.

The young duelist got into the game shop and called out for his Grandpa. However, there was no answer which baffled him. He walked further into the shop and put down the bags when he saw a note sitting on the counter.

'I've closed up the shop for today to get some groceries, I'll be back soon!' - Grandpa.

Yugi shook his head and laughed. Grandpa always wanted to do things for himself to give him some space to study. It was totally okay for him to ask Yugi to take him as well. The boy sighed, mentally writing a note to himself to go with him next time without any protests!

He kicked his shoes off near the corner and picked up the bags, quickly running off up the stairs. Yugi sped into his room and sat down without hesitating to tear open the bar of chocolate. The duelist's eyes boggled out in excitement and licked his lips at the shiny, rich milk chocolate the engraved into his glistening eyes.

Yami came out from the puzzle again and sat opposite him, eyes widening at how large the confectionary was. "You're going to eat all of that?"

"Mhm!" Yugi broke a piece from the bar and popped it into his mouth, rocking side to side in a childish manner as he chewed it with delight.

He stopped moving for a second and suddenly stared at Yami, which made his darker half raise an eyebrow.

"What is it?"

"Do you want some," the smaller one asked, breaking off another piece ready to hand it to his other.

Straight away, he shook his head. "I think I'm good. I've never had chocolate before."

He didn't seem to think that it would surprise Yugi to the point where the young boy jumped onto him, causing the both of them to fall back onto the floor.

"WHAT," Yugi let out in utter shock. "You've _never_ had chocolate before?!"

Yami inwardly cringed at the loud voice and slowly nodded. "Is it supposed to be a big deal, Aibou?"

"Of course it is, Mou Hitori no Boku!" He got off the other duelist and pouted, crossing his arms. "Everybody in the world loves chocolate or has at least tried it!"

"And I'm supposing the King of Games is forcing me to try it," he asked the boy sitting himself up, laughing at the stern face his little one was making.

"Yes!" Yugi took the piece he broke off previously and shoved it into Yami's mouth, which earned a startle from him. "Now eat it!"

Yami blinked a couple of times, feeling the candy colliding with his tongue and obeyed his hikari's request. He started to chew it slowly, the wetness of his saliva coating and melting it softly. Yugi eyed him the whole time, searching for hints if he was liking it or not. Oh God, if he didn't then he'd have to call Yami crazy for the rest of his life! Seeing the bump from Yami's throat present for a second, the candy-obsessed boy immediately showered him with questions.

"How was it? Was it good? Bad? Delicious? Tastyâ€”"

"It was far from my expectations," he cut him off, smiling. "I didn't think it would taste that good."

Yugi relaxed, dishing away the negative thoughts he had earlier. "See? I told you!" He put his hands up in the air. "Everybody loves chocolate!"

"I can now see why," Yami laughed out. "Looks like I've missed a lot."

Yugi smiled and handed the rest of the bar over to him. "You can have the rest if you want, Mou Hitori no Boku! I can just open up another one!"

Yami examined the huge bar and then looked at his partner, with an unnoticeable smirk creeping upon his lips. "Sure, but I would like to try something," he replied, taking the candy from Yugi.

Yugi innocently stared at him, completely confused. "Huh, try what?"

His darker half didn't answer him and instead proceeded to break off a relatively larger piece than what he ate. He popped it into his mouth and went closer to Yugi, who merrily blushed at the contact between their touched foreheads.

"Mou Hitori no Boku, w-what are youâ€”"

His eyes felt like they were going to shoot out of him as he felt his other's lips making a firm press onto his. The boy stiffened in surprise at the bold movement and felt his cheeks going over thirty shades of red. So many questions ran through his head! He felt weak. His mind was at blur. There was a spark going through his body that told him to kiss back. And so he did, slowly closing his eyes shut and shyly responded. He felt Yami's tongue slightly trailing across his lips, obviously asking for an entrance. Yugi opened his mouth and wanted to faint as he could taste the wet piece of chocolate dancing across both of their mouths. Yami pulled Yugi closer onto his lap, so the little boy's legs were straddling his hips. Sure, the chocolate tasted delicious but when it was in Yugi's mouth, it tasted even better to Yami. The other duelist probably felt the same too.

The two of them pulled away with Yugi breathing heavily, flustered at what just happened. He gingerly got off from his other's lap and sat with his legs crossed, looking down from embarrassment, slyly licking away the excess chocolate that laid on his lips.

H-His first kiss was from Yami!

He couldn't deny the fact that it was amazing. It felt right. Their lips fitted perfectly together...like a puzzle!

Of course, the chocolate made it even better for him too.

He suddenly felt Yami's fingers lift his chin up to lock their eyes together. Yugi turned red again, breaking the stare war between them which caused the older teen to chuckle and pull away.

"Chocolate is nice," Yami said, resting his own chin on his left palm. "But it tastes so much better when kissing you, _Aibou_."

Yugi glared adorably at the teasing statement and tackled him onto the floor again. "M-Mou Hitori no Boku!"

Yami took this chance to capture his lips again and this time, the both of them let this one be much, _much_ longer.

End
file.